Winnipeg's Filipino community is preparing to help once one of the strongest storms ever recorded on Earth blows through their home country.

Just weeks after a 7.2-magnitude earthquake devastated two provinces in the Philippines, Super Typhoon Haiyan hit the country Thursday night — with winds topping 375 km/h.

"Even though we are so far from home, we still have strong ties to our countrymen," said Zoraida Champagne, president of the Filipino Seniors Group of Students take polar bear plunge

Competition for a cause. U of M divers raise $15,000 for the United Way

SHANE GIBSON
shane.gibson@metronews.ca

University of Manitoba Asper School of Business students took a flying leap into icy-cold water Thursday in an effort to raise money for the United Way of Winnipeg.

In all, 53 students dressed in wild costumes took the ice bath, raising $15,000 for the local charity through pledges and corporate donations.

"Oh yeah, it was damn cold," laughed a shivering Brian Hood, 30, as he warmed up with a towel just minutes after his polar-bear jump. "It was definitely a bit of a shock, but we all loved it."

The jump, which has become an annual tradition for the business students, is held as part of the school's participation in an undergraduate business student competition called Jeux de Commerce West.

The competition is held in January and sees business schools across Western Canada compete in a variety of academic events, a parliamentary-style debate, a sports component and a charity element.

"This was part of the charity component, but we also do a lot of volunteering on the side," said team co-captain André Cadieux, 22. "We want our students to be good people in their community and this is a perfect opportunity for everybody to get that experience."

Scott Sime from the United Way of Winnipeg said the money raised by the students will be funnelled back into the community.

"We invest in an ongoing fashion to an essential network of programs and services from one end of the city to the other," he said. "These are all organizations that are there to help people when they need it."

Charges laid in fatal fall from hotel window

Police have laid charges in the city's latest homicide that saw a man fall to his death from a window at the Royal Albert Arms Hotel late Monday.

Christopher Paul Maier, 42, was found critically injured in the gravel lot beneath his third-floor-suite window at the Exchange District hotel around 11:45 p.m.

He was rushed to hospital but later died.

While another resident of the hotel is now facing a number of charges in connection to the death — including break-and-enter, forcible confinement and manslaughter — police said Thursday it's still not clear whether the victim was pushed from the window or whether he climbed out on his own.

"That's the question," said police spokesperson Const. Eric Hofley on Thursday. "We just know at the end of the day that Mr. Maier ended up going out the window and falling."

What police say they do know is that the victim and the accused had gotten into a fight inside the hotel earlier in the night, and Maier ran into his suite fearing for his safety.

Police allege the suspect followed the victim, broke into the suite and forcibly confined Maier just before his fatal fall.

Adam John Perrier, 33, of Winnipeg has been arrested and is now being detained at the Provincial Remand Centre.

Hofley didn't rule out the possibility of further charges being laid.

Arson Reduction Strategy amended by city committee

Solution. One official urges councillors to put more resources towards the fire investigations branch and arson data collection

A city committee amended a new Arson Reduction Strategy Thursday after listening to concerns from the firefighters' union that it doesn't do enough to target the kids who light the fires.

Alex Forrest, president of the United Fire Fighters of Winnipeg Local 867, and 36-year firefighter Russ Morrow urged councillors to put more resources towards education, fire investigations and arson data collection.

The arson-reduction strategy includes eight points that touch on ones raised by the union, as well as hosting community forums and public service announcements.

It also includes $150,000 from garbage collection fees to be spent on bulk waste removal in at-risk neighbourhoods from May to September.

Morrow called that last measure a "Band-Aid solution," while Forrest said it was "astounding" and "ridiculous" that only this measure had a monetary amount attached to it.

"While we applaud the idea of extra pickups, I'm not sure how much of an effect that's going to have," said Morrow, adding the report did not show bulk waste pickups this past summer cut down on arson.

Forrest and Morrow suggested having firefighters who are on duty-to-accommodate, such as those on short-term disability for injuries, to be trained in delivering programs like the Youth Fire Stop Program.

Acting WFPS Chief Bill Clark told the committee he was open to the suggestion.

Coun. Scott Fielding proposed adding this idea to the strategy, which was approved by the committee.

Forrest said he believes the Fire Stop program could have prevented last week's culvert fire near Portage Avenue that was allegedly set by a 12-year-old boy.

That boy was charged with arson.

CAO's power to award contracts limited to $5M

The city's finance committee has backed a report that would limit the chief administrative officer's authority on awarding million-dollar contracts.

The change means authority for the CAO and chief financial officer has been halved, reduced to $5 million from the previous $10 million.

Committee chair Coun. Russ Wyatt said they looked at other cities and found discretionary spending to be "all over the map," with Edmonton at $20 million and Mississauga as low as $500,000.

"This was a step, I think, in the right direction," said Wyatt, adding that this would have been helpful with regards to controversial projects, such as the fire halls.

Wyatt also addressed media reports that former CAO Phil Sheegl was not qualified for the position he was eventually hired into.

"I felt strongly then and still feel that it was not the right choice in terms of the organization" said Wyatt, who was not on the executive policy committee at the time and did not vote for Sheegl.

Coun. Paula Havixbeck, who was on EPC and did vote for Sheegl, called it "probably the worst decision I made since being on council."

"I'm sick about it now, sick about it as we move forward and have to clean up these messes," she said, adding that Sheegl's silence "was bought" in his resignation last month.

Asked if it was her questioning of Sheegl that factored into her removal from EPC a year ago, Havixbeck said it was huge part of it.

"When this fire hall issue came to light in the late summer of 2012, I was literally told to stop asking so many questions. Many members of EPC just said, 'just let it go and keep moving forward.'"

BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

'Very concerning'

Police HQ project needs separate audit: Havixbeck

A vocal critic of the way the fire halls file was handled is now calling for an audit on the downtown Winnipeg police headquarters.

Coun. Paula Havixbeck said she believed the HQ project would be included in the current real estate audit, expected sometime in early 2014.

However, while the acquisition of the former Canada Post building will be included in that audit, the awarding of consulting and construction contracts will not.

During Thursday's finance meeting, Havixbeck tried to bring forward a motion on a new audit, but committee chair Coun. Russ Wyatt did not allow it.

"It's very concerning because here we are hearing that we have an estimate of $17.2 million — an estimate, an estimate — that is so blatantly uncertain and will it be back here in a month? Will it be back at this committee in three months? No one knows, no one could answer that. I think we must have the answers to this."

Winnipeg lawyer David Sanders, who spoke in delegation at the start of the finance committee meeting, said "the ongoing mismanagement and even misconduct on the part of just about everyone involved demands more action" than just receiving the financial status report as information.

High Five! With Toronto Mayor Rob Ford's shocking (but not surprising) admission this week he has smoked crack cocaine within the last year, the phrase "in a drunken stupor" immediately trended on Twitter and other social media sites. Here are five other quotes from politicians whose explanations ended up in the English lexicon.

"I am not a crook." – Richard Nixon

In 1973, president Richard Nixon denied being involved in the Watergate scandal and famously said "I am not a crook." Too bad he was. And as a result, when you think of Nixon, you think of that line.

Five politicians whose explanations became quotable

"A proof is a proof" – Jean Chretien

The former Prime Minister of Canada surprised everyone with this quote. "A proof is a proof. What kind of a proof? It's a proof. A proof is a proof. And when you have a good proof, it's because it's proven." This quote landed Mr. Chretien his own spot on urban-dictionary.com as someone who mangles the English language.

"I didn't inhale" – Bill Clinton

The 42nd president of the United States admitted in 1992 that he tried pot. "I experimented with marijuana a time or two — and didn't like it — and didn't inhale..." he was quoted in the New York Times. I didn't inhale instantly became the classic excuse for trying pot.

"I did not have sexual relations with that woman" – Bill Clinton

After being accused of having an affair with White House intern Monica Lewinsky, he denied it — only to later state that he did receive oral sex, but never gave it. This led to numerous jokes about the "presidential definition of sexual relations."

"I invented the Internet" – Al Gore

Chalk this one up to misinterpretation. What former vice president Al Gore actually said was "I took the initiative in creating the Internet" while he was in Congress — basically, helping pass legislation to pave the way for its existence. Gore actually does deserve some credit, but opponents mocked the line, and now its myth lives on.

You've got Seoul: Vet's spirit buoyed by pen pal

Remembrance Day.

Frank Bayne is still haunted by what he saw during the war, but his influence on a young Korean woman's life has helped him find meaning in his suffering

JOE LOFARO
Metro in Ottawa

When Frank Bayne closes his eyes at night, he sees Korea.

He doesn't see the towering skyscrapers of present-day Seoul, or the men and women in suits strolling below, tapping at smartphones bigger than their hands.

What the Guelph, Ont., resident sees are flashbacks of his 14-month service in the final year of Canada's third-bloodiest conflict, the Korean War.

He was manning artillery guns at the peak of Sang Seung observation point, northeast of the South Korean capital in 1953, when, beneath him, in a valley, enemy Chinese soldiers shot his friend Lt. Gerry Meynell in the head and then gunned down another friend, Lt. Doug Banton.

At least 514 other Canadians also lost their lives in the 1950-1953 war.

The lasting effects remain after 60 years for veterans like Bayne.

"My wife says she knows when I'm dreaming because my legs are thrashing around like I'm running," said Bayne.

"In the last year, I had one really, really bad nightmare where she had to wake me up because I was whimpering."

But Bayne, 86, has found a way to deal with his suffering.

He started writing to seven schoolgirls in South Korea about 20 years ago through a partnership created by the Korean Veterans Association of Canada.

One girl, named Choi Jeong-Won, has kept the penpal tradition alive to this day.

As a child, she would write about her life in Korea, her school, and day-to-day goings-on in the life of a typical South Korean teenager.

In her adult life she wrote one time about feeling like she had disgraced her family by failing her bar exam for the first time.

"So I wrote her back and said, 'You know, I failed many times and please keep trying,'" said Bayne.

Bayne met her for the first time last April at a Seoul hotel while he was there for a visit organized by Veterans Affairs Canada.

In January, the federal government declared 2013 the Year of the Korean War Veteran and sent 36 vets to mark the 60th anniversary of the Korean War Armistice.

"When we met at the hotel she said that (letter) inspired her to keep on going," said Bayne proudly.

She is now in her early 30s and is a lawyer for a shipping company in Seoul, Bayne said. They've exchanged more than 45 letters.

"I feel that I've contributed to having the country the way it is today; that has allowed her to do what she's done," said Bayne. "If we hadn't gone there, the whole thing would have been a whole different story."

He has the camaraderie of his fellow veterans, but he said his relationship with Choi puts a human face on the progress South Korea has made in the last 60 years.

On Monday at his home he was preparing to send a new, handwritten letter to Choi. Tucked inside the envelope will be a Canadian Remembrance Day coin as a small token of his thanks.

He recalled her gesture of gratitude when she treated him to dinner after their hotel meeting.

En route to the restaurant in a taxi, the driver got out of the cab, bowed to him and thanked him for his service.

"People in the restaurant, again, they all thanked me for saving the country. It was quite an experience," said Bayne.

Reflecting on his journey back to the bustling metropolis, Bayne said the federal government's declaration of the Year of the Korean War Veteran has helped Canadians remember.

Several people have approached him asking him to speak about the war. This week he was scheduled to speak at a school in Guelph, at the local Royal Canadian Legion, and at a Remembrance Day ceremony.

"In the past, it really was a forgotten war," said Bayne. "And of course it used to make me angry, it used to make quite a few of us angry because people ... always referred to it as the Korean conflict. When somebody would say that I would interrupt and say, 'Well, when I was there, it sure as hell sounded like a war to me.'"

How Canada got involved

25th

The war started on June 25, 1950 when North Korean military forces crossed the 38th parallel into the Republic of Korea.

Other countries

Canada joined the war effort in Korea in support of the 15 other United Nations members, including the U.S., Australia, the U.K., and New Zealand, to help defend South Korea.

UN involvement

- The United Nations became the first international organization in history to vote in favour of using force to stop an aggressor.
- In response to the North Korean invasion, Canada recruited an army brigade called The Canadian Army Special Force to assist the UN-led mission.
- At the time, prime minister St. Laurent wanted as close to as many troops as in the Second World War as possible.

Senator speaks on what the Korean War means to her

In 1953 an armistice split civil-war-torn Korea in two along the 38th parallel.

Soviet-backed communist North Korea pursued a policy of economic independence and isolationism, and its economy and the welfare of its people has progressively worsened under a succession of totalitarian dictators.

South Korea meanwhile has improved its lot, transferring from a military dictatorship to democratic elections in 1987 and electing its first civilian president in 1993. The country has grown into a high-tech and manufacturing powerhouse with a GDP of $1.13 trillion US in 2012. It's considered the world's 12th-largest economy.

Canadian Senator Yonah Martin came to Canada in 1972 and is the first woman of Korean descent to be appointed to the Senate.

She says Canada's fight in the Korean war was worth it.

"I would not have been born, I would not be here today. So I owe my life to those who went to Korea and served," Martin told Metro.

"The Korea today is unrecognizable as everyone knows from the time of the war where Korea was literally the second-poorest country in the world and the Canadian sacrifice has not gone unnoticed. Korea was still a developing country back then and I'm amazed every time I return at what Korea has become."

Ford family flock to mayor's aid after release of rage-filled video

'Rude awakening.'

Sister calls Ford a binge drinker but no addict, mother blames pressure

Members of Rob Ford's family sprang publicly to his defence for the first time Thursday amid a growing scandal that threatens to force Toronto's mayor out of office.

In an interview with TV station CP24, Ford's sister Kathy and mother Diane blamed the pressures of the job, his political rivals and relentless media hounding for his problems.

"The pressure that has been put onto him, since Day 1 since he was elected, it is not fair," his mother said.

His sister denied Ford was a drug addict or alcoholic.

"I know because I'm a former addict," Kathy Ford said.

His sister did concede he tends to binge drink and make a "fool out of himself."

"When Robbie drinks, I think he just goes full tilt."

But Kathy said the problem pales in comparison to his achievements.

"My heart breaks for my son," Diane Ford said. "He's been attacked."

Addiction expert weighs in

The latest video — in which Toronto's embattled mayor is clearly impaired and ranting maniacally — should be the final straw before he takes a leave to seek help, says an addictions expert.

- "It would seem that there's more evidence that this poor man is suffering from extraordinarily complex problems," said Ann Dow-sett Johnston, a journalist who has chronicled her own battles with alcohol.

- "I'm watching an entire world laughing at him, and my feeling is one of deep and profound compassion.... I feel that his addiction is very public and his need for help is very evident and his situation is dire."

Ongoing conflict

Chief says he didn't know of new video

The chief of police says a new video of Mayor Rob Ford making death threats while "inebriated" is not part of an ongoing investigation into the mayor, his activities and associates.

Chief Bill Blair said he became aware of a cellphone video showing Ford swearing profusely while, in the mayor's words, "inebriated" after it was published Thursday afternoon.

"I'm not going to make any comment on the matter," Blair said Thursday.

The latest video comes after a week of stunning revelations about the mayor, including his admission earlier this week that he smoked crack cocaine about a year ago.

On Tuesday, the mayor's brother Coun. Doug Ford called for Blair to step aside — a shift for the Ford brothers, who have long been adamant supporters of the chief and police.

Doug Ford alleged Blair was on a "witch hunt" and had a conflict-of-interest for going on a private fishing trip with police board member Andrew Pringle.

On Thursday, Blair simply said "No" when asked if he would resign and told reporters the trip was appropriate.

Police were told the mayor would not be attending the chief's annual gala for charity after Ford's office said he had been told not attend. Organizers for the gala said that was not the case and that the mayor was never "uninvited."

Blair also refused to confirm reports Thursday that the mayor was negotiating with police through his lawyer to view a video of him appearing to smoke crack cocaine. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Man behind Malala attack chosen new Taliban chief

Pakistan. New leader of militant group appointed less than one week after death of predecessor in U.S. drone strike

The ruthless commander behind the attack on teenage activist Malala Yousafzai was chosen Thursday as the leader of the Pakistani Taliban, nearly a week after a U.S. drone strike killed the previous chief.

Mullah Fazlullah was unanimously appointed the new leader by the Taliban's leadership council after several days of deliberation, said the council's head, Asmatullah Shaheen Bhitani. Militants fired AK-47 assault rifles and anti-aircraft guns into the air to celebrate.

The previous chief, Hakimullah Mehsud, was killed by the drone in the North Waziristan tribal area near the Afghan border. He was known for a bloody campaign that killed thousands of Pakistani civilians and security personnel, a deadly attack on a CIA base in Afghanistan and was believed to be behind the failed bombing in New York's Times square in 2010.

Philippines. 'Catastrophic damage' predicted from year's strongest typhoon

The world's strongest typhoon of the year slammed into the Philippines on Thursday. It had been poised to be the strongest ever recorded at landfall.

"There will be catastrophic damage," said Jeff Masters, meteorology director at the private firm Weather Underground.

The U.S. Navy's Joint Typhoon Warning Center in Hawaii shortly before landfall said Typhoon Haiyan's maximum sustained winds were 314 km/h.

"There aren't too many buildings constructed that can withstand that kind of wind," Masters said.

Thousands of people have evacuated villages in the typhoon's path.

The only tiny bright side is that it's a fast-moving storm, so flooding from heavy rain — which usually causes the most deaths from typhoons in the Philippines — may not be as bad, Masters said.

PQ goes all in on controversial religion bill

The legislation. It would force state employees to take off their headscarves, yarmulkes, turbans and larger-than-average crucifixes

The Parti Québécois has raised the political stakes on its controversial religion bill.

On Thursday, it declared the tabling of the bill a meas-

It's still unclear whether the PQ will continue, in the coming weeks and months, to treat the bill as a matter of confidence in future votes.

Premier Pauline Marois held a news conference after the bill was tabled and said she believes the proposed legislation will unite Quebecers.

"We want this debate to take place in a serene atmosphere — a serene and respectful atmosphere," she said.

"It is a great moment for our society. This is a beautiful day for Quebec."

In tabling Bill 60, Parti Québécois cabinet minister Bernard Drainville said it would guarantee the equality of men and women as well as the religious neutrality of the state. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stylish stealth. Clothing concept design deters drone cameras

As George Orwell's darkest fantasies over state surveillance continue to come true, many of us feel powerless to resist. Enter New York-based artist Adam Harvey with his range of 'Stealth Wear' clothing, including a burqa design, integrating metallic fibers to throw off drone cameras and infra-red sensors.

drones are used. Having the ability to control or reduce your thermal signature can empower the wearer.

How much cover do you think your designs could offer the wearer?

I want to provide enough cover to prove that the concept works, yet not so much that I'm raising red flags. They could offer more. However, engineering a complete thermal cloak would be difficult since heat must be transferred somewhere, not only reflected.

Did you worry at all about trivializing drones, given the damage they do in places like Pakistan?

This work is meant to serve the interests of anyone living in an environment where

Who do you see as potential buyers for such products? Would you sell them in Pakistan?

Yes, hopefully anyone anywhere drones are used. Of course, to become more effective, the prices should be lower.

Do you feel this is unique or are you part of a wider movement for anti-surveillance clothing?

There's a big movement that's growing everyday. For example, privacy design and counter-surveillance classes are now offered in school, including at New York University.

$20,000 suit straight out of a James Bond movie

Bulletproof. Suit will serve both practical and novel purposes, says creator

If you're going to pay thousands of dollars for a business class plane ticket to a potentially dangerous foreign country, paying $20,000 for a bulletproof suit to keep you safe when you get there doesn't sound that outrageous after all.

That's the pitch Michael Nguyen, owner of high-end men's tailor shop Garrison Bespoke, is giving to sell the pricy suits to the corporate commandos of Bay Street.

At the Ajax Rod and Gun Club on Tuesday, Garrison Bespoke held a demo of their suit, shooting it repeatedly with different calibre handguns as it was worn by a dummy.

The suit saved the dummy from every shot but one, which landed between the lapels where there was no protection, striking and puncturing the vest underneath.

There are two distinct types of clientele who have pre-ordered the suit, according to Nguyen.

"The first one actually needs it from a functional standpoint," he said. "A lot of our clients work in industries that deal with oil, gas and diamonds, and often travel to different parts of the world and are meeting people for the first time. They don't know who to trust, but they know they've got a family back here in Toronto."

It's important for these businessmen that the suit doesn't look bulletproof, which would send the wrong message to clients, but still protects them, he said.

"The second is the type of client who would buy a high-powered sports car and drive it in Toronto," he said. "In Toronto, to have a car with 1,000 horsepower isn't very functional. But it is very cool. In the same way their wife will be collecting china or a Fabergé egg at home, they'll have a bulletproof suit."

The best-known bulletproof suit maker is Colombia's Miguel Caballero, who is known to screen his clients so the suits of amour don't end up helping criminals.

Nguyen has no such plans.

"Whatever line of work our client is in, we're here to provide a service, and a level of protection for anyone who needs it," he said. "Some people turn around their life and we want to be a second level of defence for them."

Nguyen started researching bulletproof clothing after one his clients was shot, and survived.

"It's been six months in the making. We've been searching throughout the world for the right technology," Nguyen said. JESSICA SMITH/METRO

Loverspy. Developer on FBI's most wanted list

The FBI this week added to its list of most wanted cybercriminals a former San Diego college student who developed an $89 US program called Loverspy or Email PI.

Sold online from his apartment, the program would send the suspected cheater an electronic greeting card that, if opened, would install malicious software that could capture emails and instant messages, even spy on someone using the victim's own webcam.

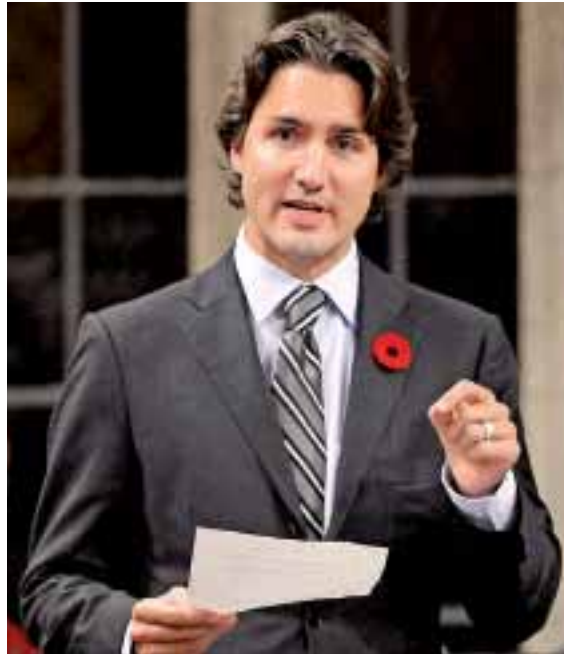

Carlos Enrique Perez-Melara, 33, has eluded authorities since his July 2005 indictment. His last known whereabouts were in El Salvador, where he was born.

Perez-Melara appears to have made relatively little money on the scheme, unlike others on the FBI list who were accused of bilking millions of dollars from businesses and Internet users worldwide. But Perez-Melara, who was in the United States on a student visa in 2003 when he sold the spyware, allegedly helped turn average computer users into sophisticated hackers who could stalk their victims.

Invitation to fundraiser. Hundreds joined the pile-on, pouring on the sarcasm and mockery

A Liberal fundraiser aimed at capitalizing on leader Justin Trudeau's popularity among women is being denounced as sexist and patronizing by his political foes — and even by some Liberals.

The backlash started instantly late Wednesday when Trudeau tweeted that he was looking forward to "cocktails and candid conversation" at the $250-a-head event in Toronto on Thursday.

Fighting back

"Get a grip, people. It's an e-vite, not a platform."

Amanda Alvaro, organizer of the fundraiser, in a tweet following the Twitter-storm.

The accompanying electronic invitation to "Justin Unplugged" features stylized close-ups of the leader with a come-hither stare and the message: "Ladies, you're invited to (really) get to know the future prime minister."

Scribbled in grade-school cursive font around the margins are a series of questions: "What's your favourite virtue?" "Who are your real life heroes?" "What is the biggest issue facing women?"

The resulting Twitter-storm was fierce, generating its own hashtag: #askjustin.

"Who organized this? Barbie?" tweeted Lisa Kirbie, a Liberal commentator.

The organizer of the fundraiser, Amanda Alvaro, fought back, tweeting that the event was "organized BY women, FOR women with a (clearly) intriguing e-vite designed to inspire dialogue."

Trudeau himself took to answering questions posed by people under #askjustin.

News worth tweeting about. Social network hits the New York Stock Exchange and flies much higher than expected Shares of Twitter went on sale to the public for the first time Thursday, instantly leaping more than 70 per cent above their offering price in a dazzling debut that exceeded even Wall Street's lofty hopes.

By the closing bell, the social network that reinvented global communication in 140-character bursts was valued at $31 billion US — nearly as much as Yahoo Inc., an Internet icon from another era, and just below Kraft Foods, the grocery conglomerate founded more than a century ago.

Who gives a Hoot about the interns?

Work in the high-tech sector can be volatile at the best of times. More than 25,000 digital media employees call Vancouver home. It's typical to work on a project, finish it and move on to the next opportunity.

It's feast or famine — especially famine if you're not getting paid.

Social media giant HootSuite, valued at over $1 billion, faced intense public scrutiny in April for hiring unpaid interns for positions that legally required financial compensation.

Vancouver-based HootSuite admitted their guilt.

"We will immediately rectify the issue by offering full payment, including interest incurred, to unpaid interns who had roles within our company," CEO Ryan Holmes said in a statement. MATT KIELTYKA/METRO

Temp is Conflicted Over Co-worker's Firing

Sarah No. 2 got the axe just before lunch: the curse of jeans day. To be practical, a company selling itself to China doesn't need someone to plan its long-term e-commerce solution. Her firing happened quickly, too. One moment she was lecturing about the excessive number of time-expired dairy products in the lunchroom fridge, the next she was standing in the lobby with a cardboard box full of generic desktop crap.

"I suppose you're happy to see me go," she said.

"Not really. I've never had to dumb myself down with you."

She gave me a judge-y looking sigh. "The world's not one big joke, you know, Shannon." She turned around to look at the dumping rain while waiting for her ride — which didn't seem to be coming. Looking out at the parking lot she got philosophical. "You know, I think that in the future we're going to look back on the 40-hour work week with three per cent unemployment as a social failure — everyone was busy, but no one was actually doing anything meaningful. Yes, you were busy all day, but so what?"

The phone rang. "Just a moment, Sarah..." "Good morning, Taylor, Wagner & Kimura Filter Systems, a proud patriotic company since 1899. One moment, I'll connect you." I put down the receiver. "Sorry, you were saying?"

"I was saying that I think a 40-hour work week may well seem as odd and cruel to future citizens as seven-year-olds working in Victorian cotton mills does to us."

I thought about this. "I think you're right. Where's your ride?"

"According to my most recent text, it's stuck in traffic across town."

I quietly phoned Sarah a cab, and when it showed up, I gave

NOTHING LIKE WATCHING ICE CLEAR

1 #InADrunkenStupor. In the moment of 2013, Rob Ford admitted, "Yes I have smoked crack cocaine," adding "Am I an addict? No. Have I tried it? Probably in one of my drunken stupors." And then the hashtag #InADrunkenStupor went viral on Twitter. An astonishing day, an astonishing moment in time. A super funny hashtag. A mayor that is cracking under pressure.

Just watch, when I'm singing 'Livin' On A Prayer' some day at a karaoke bar, Bon Jovi will walk in and join me.

6 Five-year-old's Make-A-Wish. Miles, a little boy fighting leukemia, is a HUGE Batman fan. He will get to play his fave superhero

Nov. 15 when thousands of volunteers through the Make-A-Wish Foundation help transform San Francisco into Gotham City for the boy. Miles will be Batman for a day, and do things like capturing the Puzzler in the act of robbing a downtown vault. Awesome.

7 YouTube Music Awards. The inaugural awards show had a decidedly raw feeling to it — in keeping with so many YouTube videos. The live webcast was directed by Spike Jonze, and the hosts Jason Schwartzman and Reggie Watts worked without a script and Lady Gaga performed wearing just a black cap, sunglasses and a plaid shirt. Yes, mainstream indie is in.

8 Katy Perry. She showed her tremendous Twitter power this week when she overtook Justin Bieber to take over the No. 1 position of Twitter followers, with nearly 47 million followers. (Lady Gaga is No. 3, Taylor Swift No. 4 and President Obama No. 5.) I am closing in quickly with 890 followers.

9 Dwight Howard. Some wondered whether the star NBA player would ever return to his old "Superman" form in his Orlando Magic days. After a dreadful year with the LA Lakers last year, his back has healed and his Houston Rockets are expected to make a title run — they are off to a 4-1 start. Yes, the Kryptonite is gone, and redemption is sweet.

10 The story of Twitter. A new book, Hatching Twitter, by New York Times reporter Nick Bilton brings to light the power struggle between the four founders as they built the startup that has now become one of the biggest social networks in the world — and just went public this week. If you don't want to buy it, no worries: I will tweet the entire book out word for word.

11 Miley Cyrus. She launched a redesigned website this week and the only way to describe it is butt ugly. Actually there are more ways to describe it: It's like a nine-year-old designed it. It's like a GeoCities page circa 1995. It's like Hannah Montana on an acid trip decided to be a web designer. Go to MileyCyrus.com and see what I mean.

Or don't.

Vawn (the temp behind TEMP) Himmelsbach. One of the oddest assignments I've had as a temp is, well, posing for a photo along with my coffee mug.

While my mug accurately describes my personality, ironically, I have very little to say about it.

Matt (the desk defender) Kindred. My mug is from my apartment. It was given to me by my wife. I bring it to every temp position because I think it brings me good luck. The handle is large and therefore perfect for my grip, it does not heat up when coffee is poured into it.

Also, I love cartoons so anything with a drawing on it is great.

Mila (the travelling temp) Petkovic. The mug is a favourite of mine because it's bright, happy and silly. It reminds me to be light-hearted and just laugh at life when the going gets tough. What's the point of complaining or getting stressed? Life is just so much more enjoyable when you can find the humour in it. Wow, I've never thought so deeply about a mug before!

Twitter's debut on the stock market Thursday may go down in history as the day Wall Street learned social media is about more than Justin Bieber and pictures of your lunch. Let's see what was trending on the site the day it went public.

#Movember:

The annual moustache-growing challenge in support of prostate cancer was a hot topic Thursday, as Twitter users collectively complained about itchy beards and disgruntled girlfriends.

#meshcon:

Twitter's IPO coincided with the annual Mesh Conference in Toronto, an annual gathering of digerati looking for new ways to disrupt old paradigms. There was plenty of live-tweeting.

#throwbackthursday:

Not even Twitter's public offering could stop users from posting old photos of themselves as angry teenagers.

#votarianagrande:

Canadian tweeps seemed to favour singer Ariana Grande, who's neck and neck with Austin Mahone in one of MTV's never-ending series of social media contests.

Synopsis

Each year on Nov. 11 we remember and celebrate "the men and women who have served, and continue to serve our country during times of war, conflict and peace." Remembrance Day is a time to pay respect to the sacrifices brave soldiers have made for our country. In observation The Reel Guys have compiled a list of movies to serve as a backdrop on this solemn day.

List of Remembrance Day gems, lest we forget

Enter the shoes of a soldier. The best movies to commemorate those lost in the horror of war from Saving Private Ryan to Passchendaele

Richard: Mark, the first war-themed film to really make an impression on me was The Best Years Of Our Lives. When I was a kid I watched it on television every November and although it's almost 70 years old the story of servicemen struggling to rebuild their lives after the Second World War is still timely and relevant. Perhaps it feels so authentic because the crew were all Second World War veterans and the main character, who faces discrimination after losing both hands in combat, was played by real-life disabled vet Harold Russell.

Mark: Don't know the movie, Richard. I grew up in a family of cowards and war movies were forbidden. And I don't know who said it — probably not Snooki — that "all great war movies are anti-war movies." That being said, I like the P.O.W. genre, with incarcerated soldiers plotting to get out. The Bridge On the River Kwai is one of the greatest, with a fine performance by Alec Guinness, but let's also include The Great Escape with Steve McQueen, and a left-field choice, Merry Christmas, Mr. Lawrence starring David Bowie. Waaaaay left-field, Richard, if you get my drift.

RC: War films come in all shapes and sizes. If P.O.W. movies are your thing check out The Hill, a little known British film that features one of Sean Connery's best performances. Set during the Second World War in North Africa, it's the story of a stockade run by Brits to punish deserters. Connery wedged it in between Goldfinger and Thunderball and it is a stark contrast to the work he was doing in the Bond films at the time. As for your second thought, which I suspect should be attributed to Steven Spielberg and not Snooki, two films pop to mind. Saving Private Ryan and the First World War drama All Quiet on the Western Front. Both are masterfully made films that show the brutal reality of war from the point of view of the soldiers.

MB: I've seen The Hill. It's great. But the best anti-war movie might be Johnny Got His Gun, a minimalist squirmer told from the point of view of a blind, mute quadruple amputee. Fun times! And as far as soldiers on the ground, I would nominate Black Hawk Down, or Platoon, both of which put you right in the centre of a battle you may not be winning.

RC: We can't talk about war films so close to Remembrance Day without paying tribute to Canadian soldiers on screen. Paul Gross's Passchendaele is probably our best-known homegrown look at Canadians in battle but Hollywood has never shied away from depicting fighting Canadians. Canuck heroes are portrayed in the Devil's Brigade, The Battle of Britain and Attack on the Iron Coast among many others.

MB: Yes, Canadians excel in battle. Canadians also excel at harbouring war resisters, but I've yet to see THAT movie.

Thor: The Dark World

Director. Alan Taylor

Stars. Chris Hemsworth, Natalie Portman

It's hammer time as Marvel superhunk Thor (Chris Hemsworth) battles the vengeful Dark Elves for possession of an ancient WMD with the power to destroy his home planet Asgard, Earth and all realms between. Also at stake are the lives of father Odin (Anthony Hopkins), astrophysicist sweetheart Jane Foster (Natalie Portman) and trickster brother Loki (Tom Hiddleston). Although convoluted, the movie nimbly juggles the story and the action.

Partnership

Netflix partners with Marvel

Marvel will develop four original series for Netflix in a deal that gives the streaming service one of its most high-profile content partnerships. The companies announced Thursday that the four live-action, 13-episode series will begin streaming in 2015. Marvel Entertainment president Alan Fine says the shows will be "a serialized epic" that begins with Marvel's Daredevil and is followed by Jessica Jones, Iron Fist and Luke Cage. It will conclude with a miniseries of The Defenders. Last year, Netflix acquired the paid-TV rights to Walt Disney Studios movie releases beginning in 2016. Marvel Entertainment is owned by Disney. Financial terms of the deal were not disclosed. The development order is the most ambitious TV foray for the superhero factory Marvel.

Lovers in a dangerous time

How I Live Now. Actor George MacKay talks about the high stakes of love and war

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Young British actor George MacKay isn't taking anything for granted in his career, with a number of films due out and more on the way. Chief among them is How I Live Now, Kevin Macdonald's adaptation about young lovers (MacKay and Saoirse Ronan) struggling to survive in a war-torn modern-day England.

This film is something of a surprise with its mix of elements and styles.

I think that's down to Kevin, really. The source material, too. Meg Rosoff, who wrote the novel, is very no-nonsense. It's funny meeting her because she writes such a moving book but at the same time she's very matter-of-fact and no bulls---. And that was carried on to the script and Kevin's filmmaking. It's very honest. And love is a serious matter. It's something that can be romanticized and heightened as it is, but stakes are high in a very serious way when we're in love, and it means the world to you, it is your world. So I think it's perfectly legitimate to look at it very seriously and have the stakes that high.

How I Live Now opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

And you've got some intense geopolitical elements thrown in as well. Yeah, this sort of faceless enemy that is sort of everyone today. Because the characters in the story are so blissfully unaware and in their own bubble, it's only when they're physically torn apart that it becomes a real, real reality. So we didn't feel the need to be specific about who's actually invading. I don't think they went home and watched the news at the end of the day and kept tabs on everything. I think they were just completely involved with each other.

Even before her character meets yours, Saoirse is pretty oblivious to world events.

It's that thing today. It's bad that it happens so often that you get numb to it. I think that's more of a comment on people now, just people in general, like all the terrible stuff that's going on in Syria. It's daily that things are happening, and you see it, but until that is your own mother blown to bits or something, you kind of get numb to it, which is terrible in a way.

Besides this, you have several other films coming out soon. How are you enjoying this part of your career?

It's lovely. I just love working. I think it's a novelty you can never take for granted because you never know when your next job is coming in, so you can only concentrate on what you're doing at the time and make the best of it and put everything you can into it. Until you're a kind of A-lister or something, I don't think you can really plot your next move. You just have to take the opportunity when it comes if it's right and work your ass off to get it.

So what is that next opportunity for you?

The next work that I'll be doing is a film called Pride, which is a lovely true story from 1984. There was this gay rights activist who then teamed up with the miners and started collecting for the miners and became a massive source of money, and in turn the miners came to support gay rights and a bunch of movements got passed.

Whitewashed Hollywood

Racial issues.

African-American actors and filmmakers have had a landmark year, but they remain under-represented on the big screen

Oprah Winfrey has heard this story before.

A wave of high-profile films about black people receives accolades. A heart-warming trend of greater on-screen equality is declared. Hollywood basks in its multiculturalism — and then returns to business as usual.

From the slavery odyssey 12 Years a Slave to the day-in-a-life drama Fruitvale Station, this fall has been a banner season for films of racial struggle told without white protagonists and largely by black directors. As one of the stars of the Civil Rights history film Lee Daniels' The Butler, Winfrey is a proud player in a rare moment for African-Americans at the movies.

But she and many others have tired of celebrating occasional aberrations of what should be Hollywood's regular output.

"We've been through this before," says Winfrey.

"I don't want it to be, 'Oh, gee, we had the 10 films and now it's another five years before you see another one.'"

2013 is a historical high-point for black-themed films, a culmination of Obama-era cinema. But the filmmakers and actors who made this confluence happen are resolutely against being resigned to a mere trend story, soon to be followed by another lull in diversity.

Spike Lee, whose near-annual turnout has been a steady line through the undulations of the industry, disdains black filmmakers being treated like "flavours of the year."

"Every 10 years we have the same conversation: 'Oh, there's lots of black films being made,'" says Lee, who will release his revenge remake Oldboy later this month.

"Then it drops off. It's not consistent."

Opening Nov. 29 is Mandela: Long Walk to Freedom, a sweeping biopic of the South African leader starring Idris Elba.

There's plenty of speculation 12 Years a Slave will win best picture at the Oscars this year. CONTRIBUTED

By the numbers

Last week, a USC Annenberg study supplied a reminder of Hollywood realities. The school analyzed the 500 top-grossing films at the U.S. box office in recent years. Last year, African-Americans represented 10.8 per cent of all speaking characters. (Hispanics at 4.2 per cent and Asians at 5 per cent fared even worse). Between 2007 and 2012, the 565 directors of the top 500 films included only 33 black filmmakers, and just two of them were black women. The imbalance also affects the kind of roles black actors receive. Black males are notably less likely to play romantic partners or parents, according to the study.

The best actor category, too, is full of black contenders, including Ejiofor, Elba, Forest Whitaker and Michael B. Jordan. The Oscars (which Chris Rock once called a "million white-man march") have increasingly served as celebratory breakthroughs in Hollywood's racial ceiling.

For 2001, two black actors won the top acting prizes for the first time: Denzel Washington (Training Day) and Halle Berry (Monster's Ball). Dual wins for Morgan Freeman (Million Dollar Baby) and Jamie Foxx (Ray) followed for 2004, as did the combination of Whitaker (The Last King of Scotland) and Jennifer Hudson (Dreamgirls) for 2006.

COURAGE ENCOURAGED

As we've learned from reading the gossip pages of InTouch and Us Weekly, celebrity romances tend to be quickies. Restraint is less of a virtue — it's more about being a fast fit. When it comes to fast fits in the world of TV, Katee Sackhoff of Battlestar Galactica fame sharing a bathtub with Wolowitz on Big Bang Theory or James Woods parodying himself on Family Guy were pure cameo kismet. Here, we match stars to TV shows they ought to temp on.

MIKE DOJC/FOR METRO

Bruce Jenner (The Real Housewives Circuit)

The newly single Kardashian papa bear may have won a gold medal in the decathlon and briefly replaced Erik Estrada on CHiPs for a spell, but unless he has another 15 minutes, he'll best be known for being Kris' lapdog for 22 years and having copious amounts of plastic surgery. Cavorting with Bravo's social schemers would give the tabloid pages something else to talk about.

TV shows stars should temp on

Amy Schumer (The Mindy Project)

This rising comedienne parlayed coming in fourth place on season five of Last Comic Standing to roasting Roseanne Barr and Charlie Sheen and eventually landing her own show. While Inside Amy Schumer has been picked up for a second season, to get to the next rung on the funny business pyramid Amy's going to have to broaden her fan base. A turn as a neurotic gal pal from Mindy's past could be another step on the steep climb to the A-list.

Jason Segel (Michael J. Fox Show)

With How I Met Your Mother winding down at long last, and no big screen roles on the horizon until the summer of 2014, this big lug needs to break out of the Marshall mould and stay relevant. Segel could get a lot of mileage playing against type as a suave network bigwig attempting to woo Mike away from WNBC. To complicate matters he could also happen to be one of Annie's ex-lovers.

Rob Schneider (Workaholics)

Deuce Bigalow would totally gel with slack-off sultans Blake, Adam and Ders chugging a rooftop cold one or getting roped along on one of their harebrained misadventures. Robert Englund and Tom Green turned up on season three, so there's precedent for Schneider-aged cameos. He could play Ders' old swim swami who convinces the lanky stoner that he still has a shot at the Olympics if he joins a men's synchronized swimming squad.

Kevin Durant (Scandal)

KD dipped his toes into showbiz in last year's Thunderstruck, one of those cliché-ridden switcheroo flicks in which a kid magically acquires the basketball superstar's skills. Like most athletes who moonlight in Hollywood, Durant could benefit from acting lessons, but Olivia Pope's crisis-management firm has fixed far more awkward situations. Besides, the NBA thespian bar is set so low that a middling bit-role on this political smut ride could elevate Durant above the rim.

The Biebs leaves Brazil with 'a little souvenir'

Justin Bieber's new penchant for graffiti may have gotten him into trouble with police in Brazil, as an investigation has been launched looking into Bieber's recent tagging on a wall of the former Hotel Nacional in Rio, according to TMZ.

Bieber's team reportedly received permission from Rio's city hall to spray-paint a different wall but opted for the Hotel Nacional because they felt the first choice was in a neighbourhood that was too dangerous. "He believed it to be a degraded area and decided to do it," a police spokesman says. "Now he is leaving Brazil with a little souvenir." The goal of the investigation is to determine if Bieber's actions constitute vandalism, a misdemeanor. Bieber is described in the reports as "young, blond, famous and a rebel."

Ashton Kutcher and Mila Kunis

Ashton and Mila just can't wait to reproduce

Ashton Kutcher and Demi Moore are reportedly about to file paperwork to formally end their marriage, and apparently it can't happen soon enough for Kutcher, who is desperate to start a family with girlfriend Mila Kunis, according to Radar Online.

"Ashton has made no secret of the fact that he wants to have a baby and he's told his family that they're not taking any 'precautions' against having a baby," a source says. "They don't really care if marriage comes before baby. In fact, they don't think they have to be married to have a child."

Hell hath no fury like a Gwyneth scorned

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York City

Gwyneth Paltrow is taking a stand. She wants all those concerned about freedom and justice to join with her in protesting Vanity Fair's cruelty to Gwyneth Paltrow.

Rumour has it that she is frantic over an upcoming Vanity Fair profile of her that contains some less-than-flattering revelations. She's already tried to get her famous friends to stop talking to the publication; now she wants them to refuse to party with VF too.

"Gwyneth feels her relationship with the magazine has been destroyed and she's urging pals not just to avoid doing business with the magazine, but to skip the mag's Oscar party as well," a source told Radar.

Vanity Fair's Oscar party is one of the swankiest, most prestigious parties in Hollywood. Even I, a humble blogger currently wearing teddy bear pajamas, know that. So I'd say Gwyneth is about to find out who her friends really are. Will Beyoncé think it's worth missing the biggest bash of the year to keep the 10 per cent discount on her GOOP subscription? One thing's for sure: I can't wait for this Vanity Fair profile. There must be something really good in there. Maybe she's secretly Saddam Hussein or something.

Robin Roberts shines on Good Morning America host Robin Roberts, in a sexy black jumpsuit and open-toed heels, looked the picture of health and then some at the CMA Awards in Nashville on Wednesday. Roberts was diagnosed with myelodysplastic syndrome in 2012 and underwent a bone marrow transplant last October.

Katy Perry

It's 'inevitable' Katy and John will get married (unless they break up again)

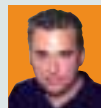

Apparently when it comes to Katy Perry and John Mayer hearing wedding bells, it's less a question of if than a question of when. "It's inevitable," a source tells E! News about the chance of Mayer proposing now that things have gotten "very serious" in their relationship. "Everyone wants them to get engaged. They are so perfect together," the source says.

Cachaça for everyone

While Canadian security

agents may be tapped into what's going on in Brazil, I'm betting most of you have never investigated cachaça (ka-SHA-sa) — the country's best known alcoholic beverage.

With all the wine pouring out of Chile and Argentina, I guess it's easy to understand how an in-your-face, sugar-cane-based spirit could take a back seat when South American booze comes to mind.

That said, cachaça is the third most consumed spirit in the world.

Often referred to as Brazilian rum, cachaça isn't made from molasses (like most rum). It's produced from raw sugarcane juice that's been fermented and then distilled.

A fiery tippie, delicate Canadian palates will appreciate it best when served hidden underneath some mix like in Brazil's national cocktail, the caipirinha. Made with a combination of cachaça, lime juice and sugar, it's a refreshing, mint-less take on the mojito.

Selection varies across the country, with Leblon Cachaça

($29.95 to $32.99) available in most markets. White rum lovers will find a familiar sugary sweetness fighting its way through the up-front aggression, while tequila fans will appreciate its vegetal nuances. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. The Brazilian food revolution

Chef Alex Atala with his new release, D.O.M. Rediscovering Brazilian Ingredients. FERNANDO CARNEIRO/METRO

Alex Atala. Rebel chef ventures into the jungle for ingredients and promotes fair trade

Metro

With Brazil hosting the two largest sporting events in the next three years — the World Cup and Olympics — you'll want to know the chef revolutionizing Brazilian cuisine.

Alex Atala is applying classical French techniques learned in Europe to local ingredients — some that have long been ignored by Brazilians.

Atala is an adventurous chef who goes into the Amazon jungle to source his ingredients. He's a rebel, serving ingredients banned in Brazil. And he's really good. D.O.M. is considered the sixth-best restaurant in the world by Restaurant magazine. Its list is an annual snapshot of the opinions and experiences of more than 900 international restaurant-industry experts.

Recently, the tattooed former amateur boxer was in Toronto to promote his first significant cookbook.

As a colonial country, Brazilians learned to value foreign ingredients at the expense of their own. Atala is rediscovering those ingredients.

"As more and more Brazilians travel abroad and see countries like France value their gastronomy, they come home curious about Brazilian food," Atala said. "There's a movement happening."

To him, manioc — known in Canada as cassava — is the most Brazilian of all ingredients. "To the people in the Amazon, it's as important as soy is to Asian cultures."

Revolutionary for Brazil,

Recipe

Mushroom With Smoked Parsnips

Ingredients

- 1 kg coarse salt
- 300 g parsnip, washed
- 150 g fresh button mushrooms

For presentation

- extra virgin olive oil, for coating the parsnips and for presentation
- smoked salt
- salt and pepper
- 4 black garlic cloves
- parsley, chopped

Preparation

1. Preheat the oven to 200 C.
2. Dampen the coarse salt. Place half the salt on the bottom of a roasting pan. Place the parsnips on top of the salt in a single layer. Cover the parsnips with the rest of the coarse salt
3. Bake for an hour. Remove from the oven and transfer the parsnips to a rack to cool.

When cool, peel skin off the parsnips and cut them into 4 pieces lengthwise. Set aside.

4. In a large frying pan or skillet toast the button mushrooms directly over flame until golden brown. Set aside and keep warm

Finish and presentation

1. Place the parsnips in a clean roasting pan and coat lightly with olive oil
2. Return the parsnips to the oven for about 3 minutes to warm through.
3. Remove from oven and season with the smoked salt. Season the mushrooms with salt and pepper, and place a mound of them in the centre of a dish.
4. Cut the cloves of black garlic in half. Arrange 2 pieces of parsnip and 2 halves of black garlic beside the mushrooms
5. Finish with drizzle of olive oil and sprinkling of parsley.

FROM D.O.M. REDISCOVERING BRAZILIAN INGREDIENTS BY ALEX ATALA

Atala started a non-profit think-tank — ATA (institutoata.org.br/en) — to promote fair-trade practices in the Amazon region and help farmers earn a living selling local produce.

Shaken with a twist: Bar gear gets swanky

Entertaining. Materials such as shagreen, faux tortoise and hammered silver are adding flair to drinking accessories

Home beer and spirit-making have become popular hobbies. Bars and beverage stores feature a growing range of artisanal spirits and craft brews. Cocktail parties are back in vogue.

And retailers are responding to all this imbibing by offering furniture, barware and accessories with cosmopolitan flair. All you need are a few invitations, snacks and some good music for the party to begin. Let's pop the cork on what's new:

"Nowadays, entertaining does not have to mean having a glitzy full bar. Bar carts have become more delicate, refined, and smaller in scale, so you can tuck them into a corner of a room or blend them in with the rest of the furniture," says Veranda magazine's market editor Catherine Lee Davis.

West Elm's Parker slim-profile cart in acorn-stained walnut veneer with brass rail trim has a mid-century vibe. The walnut-stained Dodson cart features a flip-down front concealing a mirror-lined interior with plenty of storage. And a cart in polished nickel with two foxed mirror shelves evokes Art Deco glamour. Visit westelm.com.

If you want the look of a built-in bar, consider Pottery Barn's modular collection of wine grids and drawered cabinets. In black or mahogany finish, the pieces can be configured to look like a hutch or buffet. Check out potterybarn.com.

Davis says that with barware, the trend is toward shaking it up. "We see lots of different materials like hammered silver, tortoise or shagreen," she says. "It's all about mixing and matching. After all, entertaining should be about having fun."

Gent Supply Co. (gent-supplyco.com) has a natty collection of coasters, glassware and flasks printed with illustrations of turn-of-the-century gentlemen duellers, narwhals, anchors and animals dressed in distinguished garb.

Artist Richard E. Bishop (richardebishop.com), known for wildlife etchings in the 1930s, '40s and '50s, has his work on an array of bar glasses and decanters. Ducks, trout, foxes and horses set a country house tone.

A punch bowl that rests in the clutches of an octopus, and a sculpted shell held by a delicate coral stand are part of an aluminum barware collection at Z Gallerie. There's also a faux crocodile service tray in rich eggplant, studded with silver rivets, that makes a sophisticated statement.

Ban fighting? 'It's absolutely ridiculous'

The Islanders' Matt Martin loses his helmet while fighting with the Hurricanes' Brett Bellemore in Raleigh, N.C., on Thursday night. Many NHL players have said over and over that fighting is here to stay despite public backlash. GERRY BROOME/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL. Most around hockey's highest level feel pugilism will never be eradicated

If fighting is ever going to be eliminated by the NHL, it's going to take some convincing.

A recent survey suggested that more than two-thirds of Canadian hockey fans support banning fighting at all levels of the sport, but many current and former players don't even consider it a debate worth having.

"I hate that it's even being talked about," Buffalo Sabres captain Steve Ott said. "It's absolutely ridiculous that even the notion of fighting being taken out. What a terrible mindset."

Changing the rules on fighting would require approval from a majority of the NHL Players' Association, which only last year agreed to grandfathering in the mandatory use of visors. A 2011 poll conducted by the NHLPA and CBC found that 98 per cent of 318 players polled did not want to ban fighting.

reality is that's a fluke accident."

Senators forward Chris Neil, referring to the Canadiens' George Parros suffering a concussion after falling while fighting the Leafs' Colton Orr on opening night back on Oct. 1.

Orr seemingly hasn't changed many opinions.

"That fight with Parros is an anomaly," said Sabres tough guy John Scott, who's serving a seven-game suspension after concussing Boston Bruins forward Loui Eriksson with a hit. "There are not many concussions if you watch fighting. I think it's the easiest target that people go after: Get fighting out of the game and it'll solve everything."

Former NHL defenceman Joe Watson, a member of the Philadelphia Flyers' "Broad Street Bullies" teams of the 1970s, defended fighting by comparing it to baseball and football.

"It's easy to pick on hockey because people don't know it," Watson said. "When you throw a ball a hundred miles an hour and you hit a guy in the head, what the hell do you call that?... Let's analyze football. In football you pick up a guy and throw his head into the ground. Is that not brutality?" THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornish proving to be a rare Canuck

Jon Cornish is up for two of the CFL's top individual awards.

The Calgary Stampeders running back was named the West Division finalist for the CFL's outstanding player and top Canadian honours Thursday in voting conducted by the Football Reporters of Canada and the league's eight head coaches.

Toronto Argonauts quarterback Ricky Ray was named the East Division nominee as outstanding player.

Cornish, a native of New Westminster, B.C., will attempt to become the first Canadian to be named the CFL's top player since Tony Gabriel of the Ottawa Rough Riders in 1978.

Montreal-Ottawa.

Lehner stops 33 shots to earn win in rematch of last post-season's quarter-finals

Solid goaltending and some timely scoring led the Ottawa Senators to a 4-1 victory over the Montreal Canadiens on Thursday night.

Robin Lehner stopped 33 shots, while Bobby Ryan, Marc Methot, Mark Borowiecki and Kyle Turris, with an empty-netter, scored for the Senators (6-6-4), who posted back-to-back wins for just the second time this season.

Andrei Markov scored the lone goal for the Canadiens (8-8-1) as Carey Price faced 24 shots. Montreal is winless in its last four games.

The game kicked off a five-game homestand for the Senators, who have struggled at home as of late with a 2-3-2 record so far.

With Ottawa holding a two-goal lead, Lehner was instrumental holding off the Canadiens in the third, stopping all 11 shots he faced.

Despite being outshot 14-6 in the second, the Senators, with 19,292 on hand marking their first sellout of the season, managed to take a 3-1 lead on goals by two Ottawa natives.

Methot made it 2-1 midway through the period as he picked up Markov's clearing attempt and beat Price high. Just 37 seconds later, Borowiecki scored his first NHL goal as his shot from just inside the blue-line made it through traffic.

This was the first of five games between the two teams this season. Thursday's game also marked the first meeting between the teams since Ottawa eliminated Montreal in five games during last spring's Eastern Conference quarter-finals. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jones drawn to puzzle that is pigskin

CFL. Outstanding rookie nominee from Weyburn, Sask., is drawn to unique challenge of the gridiron

Football wasn't always at the forefront of Brett Jones's life.

He was thinking dentistry when he graduated from high school and had already applied to medical school when the Calgary Stampeders drafted him.

But football drew in the 22-year-old offensive lineman from Weyburn, Sask., because it was a package of challenges: Physical strength, discipline, strategy, problem solving, time management.

"I just really think the game of football has changed who I am," Jones said. "I've really been able to realize what I'm capable of."

"I did have a curiosity. Why not give it a chance and see what happens?"

What happened was Jones was named a CFL Most Outstanding Rookie nominee on

"I've really been able to realize what I'm capable of."

Stampeders lineman Brett Jones, who has put off a career in medicine to play in the CFL.

Thursday.

He contributed to an offensive line that gave up the fewest sacks in the CFL this season and helped running back Jon Cornish rush for a league-leading 1,813 yards.

The awards will be announced Nov. 21 in Regina. Jones is up against C.J. Gable, a 26-year-old running back with Hamilton.

volving door of quarterbacks behind him as Kevin Glenn, Drew Tate and Bo Levi Mitchell moved in and out of the lineup because of injuries.

"Jonesy is a good football player and we knew that when we drafted him," Calgary head coach John Hufnagel said. "He's a strong, dedicated young man who takes his job very seriously."

"With his intelligence and ability and strength, it was a natural fit for him and he's had an outstanding year for us."

B.C. Lions receiver Jason Clermont (2002), Tiger-Cats linebacker Mike O'Shea (1993) and Winnipeg Blue Bombers receiver Joe Poplawski (1978) are the only Canadians to win the Most Outstanding Rookie award since it was introduced in 1972.

An offensive lineman has never won the award.

NBA

Brampton baller gets 1st bucket

It certainly hasn't been the start he envisioned.

At least Cleveland Cavaliers forward Anthony Bennett can now breathe a slight sigh of relief after sinking his first basket in the NBA.

Playing in his fifth game, the No. 1 overall pick in the 2013 draft from Brampton, Ont., connected on a three-pointer with 9:46 left in the first half of Wednesday night's 109-104 loss to the Bucks in Milwaukee.

Bennett started the season 0-for-15 from the field in his first four games. He went 1-for-5 on Wednesday night. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NFL. Players divided on Jonathan Martin's response

In a culture that fosters conflict, Jonathan Martin sought to avoid it.

Upset by treatment he considered abusive, the Miami tackle left the Dolphins last week. His agent complained to the Dolphins, who suspended guard Richie Incognito.

The NFL is investigating whether Incognito harassed or bullied Martin, and whether their teammates and the organization mishandled the matter.

Some say Martin handled the situation well. But some players believe Martin should have responded more firmly.

"Is Incognito wrong? Absolutely," New York Giants safety Antrel Rolle said. "No individual should have to go through that, especially in their workplace.

"But at the same time, Jonathan Martin is a 6-4, 320-pound man. I mean, at some point and time you need to stand your ground as an individual."

Dolphins players have defended Incognito, long considered one of the NFL's dirtiest players, praising his leadership and loyalty.

They've been less passionate in their support of Martin, saying he and Incognito behaved like best friends.

"They did a lot of stuff together," tackle Tyson Clabo said. "So if he had a problem with the way he was treating him, he had a funny way of showing it." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Tyson THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Mike Tyson. Ex-heavyweight champ bares soul in autobiography

Mike Tyson's life story is the gift that keeps giving.

And giving. And giving.

At one time he was the baddest man on the planet, a heavyweight champion who terrorized anyone who got in his way, inside the ring or out. More recently he's unburdened himself as perhaps the most tortured soul on earth, with a one-man show on Broadway that Spike Lee has turned into an HBO special airing Nov. 16.

It turns out that Tyson didn't tell us everything. Not to worry, because he's taken care of that in a hefty autobiography that might be the most soul-baring book of its genre ever written.

The title is Undisputed Truth, and the truth is that Mike Tyson is one messed-up dude. He's desperate to put his demons to rest, but the book

Quoted

"I have a lot of pain and I just want to heal."

Mike Tyson says he's back in Alcoholics Anonymous after drinking in August.

needed an extra epilogue written just before printing to talk about him falling off the sobriety wagon once again.

And though things might be better these days in Tyson's world, he constantly warns that he's not far from slipping off the edge, or slipping back into a strip club to party with drugs and women.

"Sometimes I just fantasize about blowing somebody's brains out so I can go to prison for the rest of my life," he writes. "Working on this book makes me think that my whole life has been a joke."

If so, Tyson has yet to figure out the punchline. Though he has reinvented himself in recent years as a family man and vegan with enough comedic chops to act in movies, he says he lives daily with the dark past of a junkie who loved to snort cocaine and drink and was constantly preoccupied with finding women to bed.

Webster knocks out Holland at Road to the Roar

Curling. Calgary rink's Olympic hopes still alive in Kitchener, Ont.

Crystal Webster avoided elimination at the 2013 Capital One Road to the Roar Olympic pre-trial tournament with an 8-5 win over Amber Holland on Thursday.

Webster's Calgary rink took control from the start of the C-event game. She took a 4-2 lead in the fourth end when Holland's soft tap-back attempt wrecked on a guard, leaving an open draw for two points.

A single in the ninth end was too little too late for Regina's Holland, who was eliminated with her third loss.

Calgary's Crystal Webster eliminated Regina's Amber Holland on Thursday with a win at the Road to the Roar Olympic pre-trials in Kitchener, Ont.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

"We knew we had to play better today," said Webster, referring to the team's two previous losses. "We played miles better than we have the two previous games. We loved the ice today, so that made us feel so much better."

Webster credits third Cathy Overton-Clapham for bringing some much-needed experience to a team that has yet to compete at the international level.

"We thought, in an Olympic year, it would be great to bring that experience on to our team," she said. "And we're still learning from each other of course. We've tried to play as much as (we) could leading up the pre-trials, but we are getting better."

The teams are fighting for the last four berths — two men and two women — at next month's Tim Hortons Roar of the Rings Canadian Curling Trials in Winnipeg.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Success comes to those who dare, so dare to be different and don't give two hoots what other people might say. The only thing that matters is what you say (and do).

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Don't waste time and energy completing a task that should have been over and done with by now. Your life is about to move in a radically new direction. In a matter of days, you will be working on something different.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Set targets but don't set time limits. Keep your plans general over the next few days and let everything happen at its own natural pace, even if at times that pace seems dead slow.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Keep your ideas simple today if you want to be taken seriously. Sometimes your thoughts get complicated and you spend more time trying to make sense of them than actually getting things done. Time to change.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You may be generous but you are nobody's fool and anyone who thinks you will be taken in by a sob story today will soon realize they have made a mistake.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Why waste time fussing when you can be having fun with your friends? You may have serious things to think about but you will think about them better if you are enjoying life.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You seem to be on duty all the time and you really must call a halt. Take a break if you need it today and over the weekend. In fact, take a break if you don't need it — just to make the point that no one owns you.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You have worked hard for what you've got and will have to work hard to keep it. Is someone going to take it away from you? No! But don't be careless and give it away.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

An opportunity will arrive out of the blue tomorrow or over the weekend and you must not hesitate to make use of it. The planets warn if you don't move immediately it won't be with you long, so get it together.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

No one is perfect, so don't beat yourself up for mistakes you have made. The fact that you got something wrong is evidence that you tried something different, which is more than most people do.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Are you pleased by what you have achieved or annoyed by what you have failed at? The way you answer says a lot about your state of mind. Be positive: Yesterday's failures lead to tomorrow's successes.

Pisces

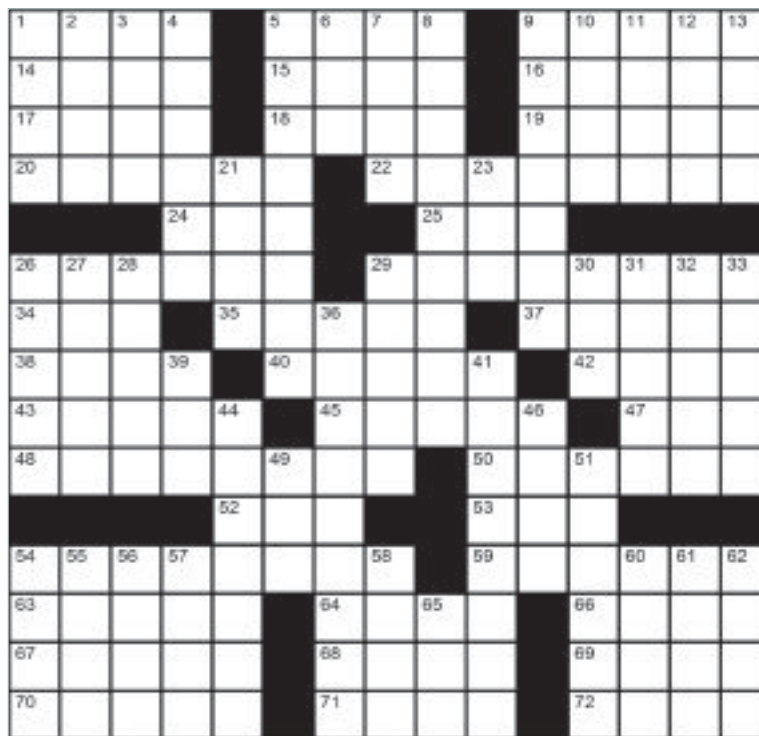

Feb. 20 - March 20

Strive to see the good in everyone today, even people who you can't stand the sight of. They have simple human failings, like you. SALLY BROMPTON
